InDivEU – party preferences

European University Institute, Robert Schuman Centre for Advanced Studies

December 2020

Introduction

The “InDivEU – party preferences” dataset provides data on the positions of more than 400 parties from 28 countries¹ on questions of (differentiated) European integration.

The dataset comprises a selection of party positions taken from two existing datasets:

(1) The EU Profiler/euandi Trend File

The EU Profiler/euandi Trend File contains party positions for three rounds of European Parliament elections (2009, 2014, and 2019). Party positions were determined in an iterative process of party self-placement and expert judgement.

For more information: <https://cadmus.eui.eu/handle/1814/65944>

(2) The Chapel Hill Expert Survey

The Chapel Hill Expert Survey contains party positions for the national elections most closely corresponding the European Parliament elections of 2009, 2014, 2019. Party positions were determined by expert judgement.

For more information: <https://www.chesdata.eu/>

Three additional party positions, related to DI-specific questions, are included in the dataset. These positions were determined by experts involved in the 2019 edition of euandi after the elections took place.

The inclusion of party positions in the “InDivEU – party preferences” is limited to the following issues:

- General questions about the EU
- Questions about EU policy
- Questions about differentiated integration
- Questions about party ideology

¹ This includes all 27 member states of the European Union in 2020, plus the United Kingdom.
